

FACTS

WHAT DOES BANK OF AMERICA DO WITH YOUR PERSONAL INFORMATION?

Why?

Financial companies choose how they share your personal information. Under federal law, that means personally identifiable information. Federal law gives consumers the right to limit some but not all sharing. Federal law also requires us to tell you how we collect, share, and protect your personal information. Please read this notice carefully to understand what we do.

What?

The types of personal information we collect and share depend on the product or service you have with us. This information can include:

- Social Security number and employment information
- account balances, transaction history and credit information
- assets and investment experience

How?

All financial companies need to share customers' personal information to run their everyday business. In the section below, we list the reasons financial companies can share their customers' personal information; the reasons Bank of America chooses to share; and whether you can limit this sharing.

Who we are

Who is providing this notice?

Bank of America U.S. legal entities that utilize the names: Bank of America, Banc of America, U.S. Trust or Merrill, as well as the entities listed in the Bank of America U.S. legal entities section.

What we do

How does Bank of America protect my personal information?

To protect your personal information from unauthorized access and use, we use security measures that comply with federal law. These measures include computer safeguards and secured files and buildings. For more information, visit bankofamerica.com/security or ml.com/security.

How does Bank of America collect my personal information?

We collect your personal information, for example, when you:

- open an account or perform transactions
- apply for a loan or use your credit or debit card
- seek advice about your investments

We also collect your personal information from others, such as credit bureaus, affiliates, or other companies.

Why can't I limit all sharing?

Federal law gives you the right to limit some but not all sharing related to:

- affiliates' everyday business purposes— information about your creditworthiness
- affiliates from using your information to market to you
- nonaffiliates to market to you

State laws and individual Bank of America companies may give you more rights to limit sharing. See Other important information section for your rights under state law.

What happens when I limit sharing for an account I hold jointly with someone else?

Your choices will apply to you alone unless you tell us otherwise. However, your choice to limit sharing with nonaffiliates to market to you for credit card accounts or Sponsored Accounts will apply to all joint account holders. If you have more than one credit card account or Sponsored Account and you choose to opt out, you will need to do so for each account.
