Kirstin Hill: For me it's about knowing where I stand, and really understanding where I am, where my family is, what my ability is to provide for my kids.

Kathy Magliato: Every year since 1984 more women have died from heart disease than men. You can have all the wealth in the world, but ladies, if you don't have your health you have nothing.

Lisa Genova: Human emotion and connection cannot be destroyed by Alzheimer's. From knowing that your father in that nursing home might not remember what you said, trusting that he'll remember how you made him feel. And so when we love passes through the lens of empathy and we have compassion, we now have the kind of knowledge and understanding that can change the world.

Lindsay Hans: We're just not where we need to be as a society as it comes to talking about money.
